Get Gigi Hadid

Dreamy sequinned look

You know it's going to be a fashion-forward, lust-worthy look from top to toe if you hear Gigi Hadid is wearing it – and the model has certainly delivered! Gigi Hadid no doubt has the fashion world at her feet, with every single designer piece at her fingertips. She knows exactly what's hot every season – and not just because she is the one debuting the looks on the runway as one of the most in-demand catwalk models in the world.

Gigi demonstrates that she is all about the versatility, not just on the catwalk, but in her day to day looks too. Although we adore her dressed down days that consist of little more than simple jeans and the comfiest sneakers imaginable, and always strive to emulate her off duty style, it's a slightly chicer look we have fallen in love with this issue. Even the quickest of glances will have you hooked!

We love this look because it sleekly and effortlessly combines not one but two of the hottest new season trends. If you cast your minds back to last issue where we rounded up the best and most in-demand trends from the Spring/Summer 2018 collections that hit New York, London, Milan and Paris, you'll remember that sequins were all over the catwalk in every single city. And what woman realistically has ever been able to resist a sequin or two? Pink, in all varying shades and intensities, was also hot property – and this soft pink shade that Gigi is rocking is definitely up there with our favourite hues. Pretty and playful, there's nothing not to love about this look – and we're going to tell you exactly how to get your hands on it.

Nina Ricci lace top body

We don't know how we used to live without bodysuits. Bodysuits are one of the most intelligent and functional pieces of clothing a woman can own, especially when it comes to matching with tight fitted pencil skirts or trousers. Gone are the days of constantly worrying your top is going to ride up at any given moment, or worse still, leave you with less than flattering lumps and bumps in all the wrong places. Shudder. But we thankfully don't have to worry about that with bodysuits, as they always guarantee a seamless silhouette every single time.

Gigi's Nina Ricci body works perfectly with her skirt, not just because of the fit, but because of the added texture and romanticism it brings to the look too. We wouldn't be surprised to find a less confident dresser make the body or the skirt the key piece of the outfit – and accessorise minimally to accommodate – but not Gigi. Gigi Hadid has given us two exceptionally bold pieces, and has made them work for her in ways we never even imagined possible. Let this be a sartorial lesson to everyone.

Ps: this body comes in light grey and black as well as the rose pink that Gigi is expertly modelling, just in case you have fallen in love with it as much as we have and want to expand your collection.

Nina Ricci lace top body, £707, available at Far Fetch

Prada sling-back pumps

We couldn't have picked a better pair of shoes to go with this outfit. To avoid the outfit being too soft and girly (yes, there is such a thing as too soft and too girly) and to add some much needed edge, Gigi chose these two tone sling-back pumps to complete her pretty in pink look. (Side note: they also come in gold and are just as stunning, in case you wanted to restock your shoe closet.) The heel height makes them perfect for taking you from day to night without a hint of discomfort, which is extremely appreciated, as we would want to stay in this outfit for as long as possible if we stepped out in it.

Prada sling-back pumps, £730, available at Orchard Mile

Nina Ricci draped sequinned skirt

We clearly didn't get enough of sequins in the last issue, because we are beyond delighted to be writing about them yet again. The sequins found on this dream-worthy skirt need to be studied and appreciated in closer detail – the closer the better – which is a great excuse for purchasing it! This skirt is as luxurious as it is sparkly – and definitely worth every single penny if you decide to treat yourself to it. Of course wearing it with the matching body à la Gigi is going to be our top recommendation, but don't let that be your one and only styling option. Mix it up and make it even more feminine and romantic by way of a white off-the-shoulder cropped top – this will also make the skirt stand out even more than it currently does with Gigi's styling combo – or add some attitude and go for a contrasting top in a dark and mismatched shade. Dare we even suggest a print?

The Victoria Beckham X Estée Lauder

... and everything else from the new collection!

You know that you're in for a treat when one of the biggest fashion players joins forces with a powerful beauty empire. The first Victoria Beckham x Estée Lauder collection was full of sumptuous and luxurious pieces, which is why we aren't in the least bit surprised to find out that they have teamed up yet again for a second time, proving that the highly lauded collection wasn't just a one hit wonder. It's dramatic and may be slightly controversial but we're going to say it: Victoria Beckham x Estée Lauder take two might just be even better than the first collection.

Limited
Edition Lit
Beauty Box

Second time round, Victoria Beckham and Estée Lauder have taken more chances and gone for bolder and more dramatic pieces – definitely what we like to see, especially as we always have a reason to get dressed up and party! Although we love each and every piece of the collection (trust us, it isn't hard – have you SEEN the swatches?) we can't go any further without mentioning the true stand-out piece, the piece that has occupied many of our dreams and daydreams since we first laid eyes on it. And whether you're a beauty aficionado, a huge VB fan, or a collector of all things luxurious and highly sought after, then you're going to want to get your hands on it pronto. We are referring to the delectable limited edition Lit Beauty Box, of course.

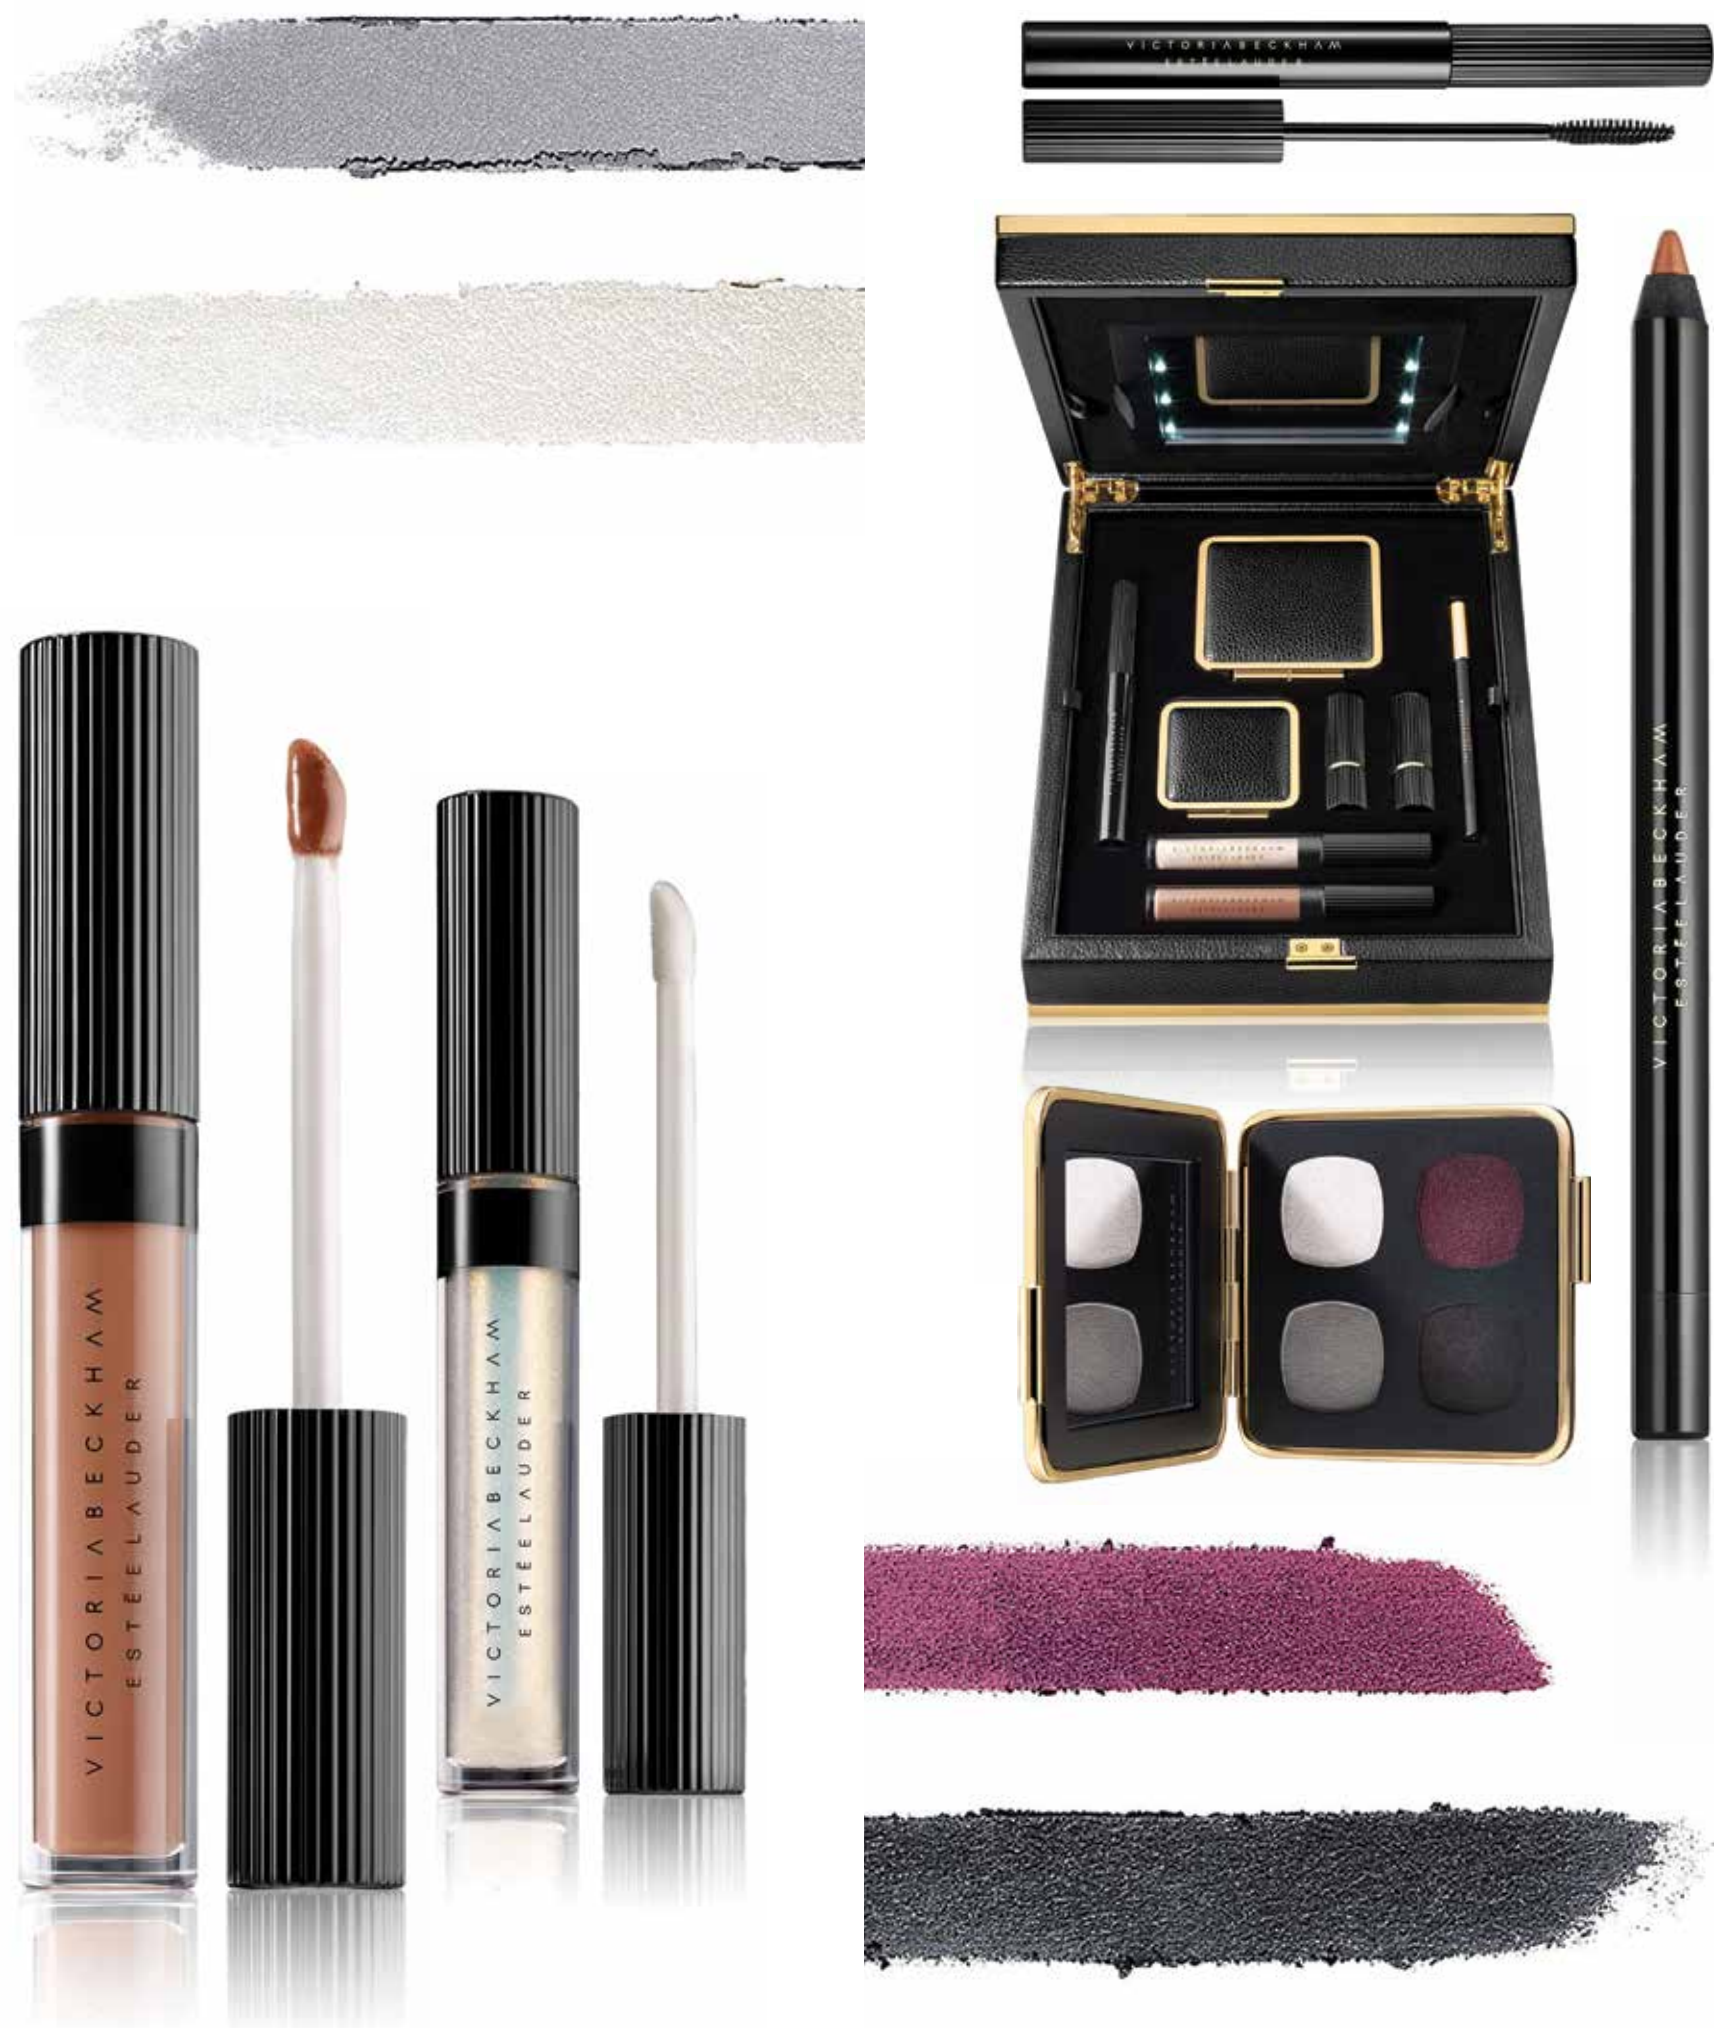

Each limited edition Lit Beauty Box sells for £1,200 which is quite a hefty price to pay considering the reasonably priced pieces that feature through the entire collection. But, just like the infamous La Mer face cream – which retails for over £1500 for a large tub – we feel this is worth every single penny. And don't be surprised to find it go up in value as the years go on. Sure it doesn't have the ability to turn back the clock or freeze time like the La Mer moisturising cream does, but every single Lit Beauty Box is an exclusive numbered edition, and even comes with a personal signed note from Victoria Beckham herself. And if that isn't the same – or even better – than the magic La Mer's cream possesses, then we may have to re-evaluate everything we ever thought we knew about the world. All eight of the signature products included in the box are just as covetable as you would expect, hand-picked exclusively from the Victoria Beckham Autumn/Winter 2017 Makeup Collection. Included in the Lit Beauty Box are: a highlighter in 'Modern Mercury', eye metals in 'Blonde Gold', eye ink mascara in 'Blackest', lip pencil in 'Victoria', two matte lipsticks in 'Victoria' and 'Burnished Rose', and lastly two lip glosses in 'Desert Heat' and 'Fired Crystal'. Best of all, The Lit Beauty Box even comes with a removable lighted mirror – how very on brand! Your dressing table will look chic all year round with this box resting beautifully on it. Whether you choose to actually use the products or just use it as a piece of art, this is one purchase you will never regret making. If you do, however, prefer your make-up on your face where you and the rest of the world can see it and not sitting untouched on your dressing table, then read on. As we mentioned earlier, every single piece from the second Victoria Beckham x Estée Lauder collection is lust-worthy in its own right. The new capsule collection really emphasizes the natural glow, which is why we are thrilled to find a number of illuminating products to give us that highly coveted glow, and more shimmering metallic hues than you can shake a stick at. If there's one thing to take away from the second collection, it's that VB doesn't want you to go unnoticed. The eye palette is undoubtedly going to be a big hit with partygoers everywhere, as it features some of the most dramatic and seductive shades in existence. You too can now create a deep smoky eye with a new-season-approved layer of shine to boot. And speaking of shine, we're delighted that the eye foils are back for round two, as they were the undeniable highlights (no pun intended) of the debut collection. The eye foil covers the lid and provides unrivalled shine – perfect to use alongside complementary shadows or on its own, although our beauty tip is to use a make-up brush and sweep some product across the lid before adding your shadow to make it pop like never before. Buy and try now, thank us later. If you're on the quest for even more shine, then the Aura Gloss is also something you're going to want to stock up on. Infused with gold pearl shimmer, this high shine gloss rivals some of the priciest and most luxurious products on the market; it catches the light, defines features and creates dimension everywhere from the cheekbones to the bridge of the nose and even the lips. We have to warn you that most of these items seem to go out of stock minutes after being replenished, so if you're lucky enough to find what you're looking for, grab it and don't look back!

LACE

There are so many different looks you can achieve with lace –sexy, romantic, gothic, the list goes on and on. We’ve always had a bit of a love affair with lace, and our obsession is only getting stronger thanks to its constant appearance on the trend-determining catwalks of the world, each time more exciting and innovative than the last. It may be a bold statement, but we predict that lace will never go out of style. Lace not only adds another dimension to an outfit by creating a delicate texture, but it also creates unrivalled femininity, which is sometimes the final touch that an outfit is so desperately longing for. There’s never a bad time to wear lace! Take a look at some of the latest lace pieces to grace the shops to see what we mean.

Lace earrings? You better believe it! Aurélie Bidermann’s lace inspired earrings are exactly what we were talking about when we said lace was finding new and innovative ways to grace the catwalks. Subtle, delicate, and completely jaw-dropping with their dreamy rose gold colour and intricate filigree pattern. The best thing about these earrings, however, is that they come with a matching cuff, which means you can double up on lace – and let’s face it, get a double dose of happiness – in an instant.

Not only does Valentino do lace, but he excels in lace. If you’re going to get a lace blouse, you couldn’t do any better unless Valentino Garavani himself tailor made you your very own bespoke blouse. (A girl can dream, can’t she?) We adore every single perfectly thought out detail of this blouse; the relaxed, cape inspired silhouette, the delicate lace detailing, and of course, the gorgeously feminine colour. The colour has been on our must-buy list since pink was declared one of the hottest colours of the new season during the SS18 catwalk outings, which only adds to the long list of reasons we need this blouse in our lives.

*Valentino lace blouse,
£868, available at My Theresa*

Contrary to popular belief, you don’t have to go all-out to embrace a trend, as this Gucci shirt proves. Something as simple as a lace trim can make the biggest difference; a classic Oxford shirt has been given an instant make-over thanks to the lace trim. The faux pearls and the crystal embellishments are a divine finishing touch!

*Gucci bow

Manolo Blahnik has taken everything we love about lace, mixed it with his signature stamp of unrivalled class, and produced one of the most delicate, delectable pieces of footwear we have ever seen. Keep the rest of your outfit chic and simple, and ooze class and sophistication with these Manolo Blahnik Hangisi pumps.

Manolo Blahnik Hangisi pumps,

It shouldn't come as a shock to see another Valentino piece on our list of lace must-haves. Perfect for the autumn/winter season, this sweatshirt from the Valentino Pre-Fall 17 collection ticks so many of our boxes. The collection as a whole was inspired by the United States of America, and this sweatshirt in particular was created to pay homage to the iconic preppy style found commonly on the East Coast. There are many ways to style this sweatshirt, but we love the burgundy colour so much so we insist on teaming it with matching accessories in equally deep and bold shades.

Valentino cotton blend lace sweatshirt,
£870, available at Net a Porter

Dolce and Gabbana are masters in the lace game, and have provided us with several covetable lace pieces over the seasons. Although there were many pieces to choose from, we've selected this deep green lace top that can be worn and appreciated the whole year round. The deep green shade makes it a perfect autumn/winter piece, but the fact that it can be juxtaposed nicely with a bright skirt, for example, makes it a daringly fitting choice for summer too. The material is semi-sheer, so we would recommend teaming it with a matching camisole or bralet (if you're feeling brave!)

Dolce and Gabbana green lace top,
£925, available at My Theresa

Step up your lace game and add some lace footwear to the proceedings. Not just any footwear – autumn/winter ready thigh high lace boots, of course. And who better to provide such thigh high lace boots than shoe master Christian Louboutin? We've fallen head over heels for these Christian Louboutin Tennissina lace boots, which feature all-over floral print wax guipure lace, and are backed by transparent mesh for stability. Much appreciated, although we would also be perfectly happy keeping them in our dressing room just to look at, too.

Christian Louboutin Tennissina lace boots,
$1,295.00, available at Christian Louboutin

Clutch bags adorned in lace are very in demand right now, and it isn't hard to see why. Alexander McQueen has added a touch of romance and femininity to its iconic knuckle clutch bag – the perfect thing to complement such a bold and edgy design. We've seen the classic knuckle bag in an array of different designs, but lace might just get the top spot for us.

Alexander McQueen red knuckle clutch,
£972.83, available at Vestiaire Collective

Edgy, leg-elongating, and the definite highlight of any outfit – deciding whether or not to slide into these Balenciaga lace and spandex sock boots is a no brainer. Add attitude to the classiest or most casual of outfits. We firmly believe that every wardrobe needs a stand-out piece that is going to instantly transform an outfit, and that's precisely what these lace Balenciaga boots offer. Just a shame they don't come in more colours or heel heights...

Balenciaga lace and spandex sock boots,
£765, available at Net a Porter

Here's another piece that demonstrates how powerful a small and subtle lace addition can be. Although this Giambattista Valli tweed coat would still be mind-blowing without the lace, we think you'll agree that it transforms the coat to new, exhilarating heights.

Giambattista Valli lace trim tweed coat,
£1,845, available at Far Fetch

How do Domenico Dolce and Stefano Gabbana manage to create some of the most delicate, intricate, stunning accessories season after season? Once again, we have fallen for a Dolce and Gabbana clutch bag, and we really don't think anyone else would be able to resist the Sicilian glamour of this bag either. While we do enjoy carrying make-up and beauty products on the go, we are more than willing to change our habits and leave the house with the bare essentials if it means being able to carry this clutch. Whoever said fashion was about making sacrifices clearly had the same dilemma!

Dolce and Gabbana lace clutch bag,
£1,450, available at Far Fetch

WINTER florals

You may have lived your whole life believing that florals were synonymous with springtime. Of course you're not wrong, but we want to open your eyes just a little, and let you know that while nature's prettiest print will always have a place in springtime attire, florals are not strictly exclusive to that particular season. Au contraire, florals can be worn for every single one of the four seasons, and winter florals in particular are having a highly deserved moment right now.

Getting into the winter florals mind-set is pretty easy, as it simply involves forgoing the typical light, pastel spring shades, and replacing them with bolder and deeper hues instead. There's something quite empowering about wearing florals in winter – and dare we say slightly adventurous too, almost as if we are breaking the rules. Any style maven will tell you that the best part of fashion is being able to make your own rules – and that also includes breaking them – so we are totally on board with this unconventional trend.

But don't just take our word for it – all you need to do is cast your minds back to the autumn/winter 2017 collections to see a plethora of bewitching, beautiful blossoms parade down the catwalks. Giambattista Valli, Erdem, Isabel Marant, Emilia Wickstead, Prada and Miu Miu are just a few of the big names who went down the winter floral route last season, and luckily for us and all other winter floral lovers (we hope that includes all risk-taking First Avenue readers) the rest of the world has followed suit. There are hundreds of floral pieces available to buy and wear right now, which is what makes this trend so wonderfully exciting.

Luckily (if you never want to put your beachwear away and want that yearlong glow) or unluckily (if you want to explore all the warm winter wardrobe options out there) we don't see that much of a drop in temperatures, which means we can't always break out some of the lavish and luxurious winter pieces that some of the world's biggest designers debut on the runways. But that doesn't mean that we can't get into the winter florals game, as there are still many designs out there that cater to Dubai's scorching year-round temperatures while still maintaining the winter florals theme. And of course, we know we aren't the only ones who like to pack our bags several times a year and jet off to different destinations with far lower temperatures, which is why we are looking at winter floral pieces to cater to every single temperature life throws at us. We also wouldn't rule out heading to the other side of the world just to break out some truly winter-ready pieces. It certainly wouldn't be the first time...

Want to keep out the cold but don't want to give up on feminine lines and bold summer colours? Well with this Pringle of Scotland dress, you don't have to do either! Hold on to summer by keeping the bold and bright colours close, and always stay one step ahead of the cold weather by adding length in all possible areas. You'll be surprised how adding sleeves, a high neck and a low hem can keep out the chill but still give off a feminine and high fashion vibe. Not everyone can get away with it, but we trust Pringle of Scotland to do it right... and the brand certainly hasn't let us down!

£2,485 available at Selfridges*

The first piece of footwear that comes into our heads when there's even the slightest chill in the air is the ankle boot. We will find any excuse to step out in an ankle boot, and this fine specimen from Christian Louboutin is as gorgeous as ankle boots come. Wear with a metallic pleated midi skirt for rock chick glam with a touch of femininity, or with an all-black ensemble to truly pop.

Christian Louboutin Moulamax 85 floral print ankle boots,
£695, available at Net a Porter

This skirt is all the proof you need that florals can go down the dark and haunting route too. With rich, winter-ready colours, this Dolce and Gabbana creation should be a must-have in all autumn/winter wardrobes. Team with accessories in any one of the bold colours found on the skirt, and stand out from the crowd with ease. What will you wear yours with?

Dolce and Gabbana floral print skirt,
£953, available at The Italist

Silk skirts in winter; and why not?! Here we have another enchanting skirt to tempt you with, this time courtesy of Erdem Moralioglu and his stunning interpretation of winter florals. This skirt is perfect for the lily lover, as well as lovers of all things ethereal and entrancing. Team with subtle accessories to make the skirt the stand-out piece, and some leg elongating heels to give you and the skirt the dream-worthy silhouette it deserves.

Erdem Leandra floral-printed silk skirt,
£730, available at My Theresa

If being “extra” and over-the-top is the order of service, then it would be a crime not to turn up in this Gucci floral dress. To guarantee that all eyes will be on you (because you will be the sartorial star), then this is the show-stopping piece for you. The Gucci glasses are of course optional, but it would be a shame not to commit to the whole look when you’ve already come so far, are we right? This dress has virtually everything thrown at it, but miraculously not a single detail seems out of place, and instead looks expertly thought out and put together. Everything from the intricate lace detailing to the powerful florals to the chic black ribbon to the glorious gems placed on the collar. We love every single thing about this dress, and know it would be a cherished piece of clothing to reside in our wardrobes for a lifetime.

Gucci floral organdy jacquard and lace dress, £6,080, available at Gucci

This coat is all about the winter florals with an autumnal twist. The hues found in this Stella McCartney coat are almost too breath-taking for words. With not a single hint of spring floral clichés, this coat ticks all our “thinking outside the box” boxes. If there’s one item that’s going to change a winter floral sceptic’s mind, it’s going to be this coat. With its rich colours and bold print, who could possibly resist?!

Stella McCartney concealed fastening floral coat, £1,135, available at Far Fetch

Be still our beating hearts. You’ll be forgiven for dropping everything and browsing flights to the coldest destinations, just so you can slide into these over the knee boots by Joseph Altuzarra. If you too are mesmerised by the print on these boots you may be interested to know that the print is inspired by the Pre-Raphaelites of the mid 1800s, a group of artists known for their unique take on romanticism and their devotion to nature. Their aforementioned devotion is clear to see from the exquisite detailing of this print alone, and after researching some of their work, we believe that Altuzarra has done them proud.

Altuzarra ‘Elliot’ floral-print matelassé over-the-knee boots, £1,390, available at Net a Porter

For something a little bit out of this world, look no further than this long-sleeved dress from Roberto Cavalli. RC never lets us down when it comes to putting a fresh and unique spin on old classics, and that’s exactly what he’s done here with the classic rose. We’re getting bewitching fortune teller vibes from this dress, which is pretty exciting! The square neckline is a nice touch, as it gives us a lot to play with in terms of accessories. A silk neck scarf or an over-the-top costume necklace with similar gypsy vibes is what we’re imagining here.

Roberto Cavalli floral print dress, £645.42, available at The Italist

Although darker, more spellbinding shades have proven popular as far as winter florals are concerned, that isn't the only direction the world's biggest and most influential designers have gone in. Take Miuccia Prada for example. Some of Prada's winter floral offerings still have light and airy colour palettes, but the designs and prints themselves have gone down a different route instead. Our favourite winter floral piece has to be this nude angora sweater, as it features an intricate, abstract floral print that we can't seem to take our eyes off. It can be teamed with virtually anything, so it's one of those pieces we can all have a lot of fun with over the season.

£825, available at Far Fetch

Caught between light and dark, good or bad, or black and white? This Isabel Marant skirt is the epitome of indecision, but we can't help but fall in love with its daring message. So simple, but probably quite controversial as we can't imagine it will be everyone's first choice. If you love making people scratch their heads and ask questions then this is definitely the right skirt for you. Who says you need to abandon your love of springtime florals when you can have everything rolled into one? Thank you Isabel Marant!

Isabel Marant Inaya floral-print silk chiffon skirt,
£590, available at Harvey Nichols

Are you sitting comfortably? Comfort isn't mandatory, but we would seriously encourage sitting down, because what we're about to tell you might shock you to the point of fainting. Jennifer Lopez celebrated her 48th birthday this year. Yes, that's right, 48. Jenny from the Block is 48 years old – as in two years away from the big 5-0. Regardless of how many different ways we say it, or how many times, it's quite difficult for us to process. All you need to do is look at our front cover or any picture on these pages to see why we are scratching our heads in confusion and disbelief that the woman staring back at us is not a fresh faced 20-something at the beginning of her career.

J-Lo really is proof that age really is just a number. Her glowing face and goddess-like body that would make even a Victoria's Secret Angel green with envy are just the beginning of our – and the rest of the world's – resurrected obsession with her. Don't get us wrong, we've always been huge fans of the actress and singer, but there's something about her recent style choices that have made us pay more attention than ever before.

Jennifer's style is chicer, sexier and more on point than ever right now, which is why she has dominated red carpets around the world and topped global best dressed lists for every event she has graced with her presence. Let's take a look at some (but most certainly not all!) of J-Lo's greatest and latest red carpet victories. Do you have a favourite?

2016 73rd Annual Golden Globe Awards in Giambattista Valli

Canary yellow. We didn't think anyone else could wear a canary yellow dress- or canary yellow anything if we're being totally honest – without being reminiscent of Sesame Street's very own Big Bird. Yet here Jennifer Lopez is, looking nothing short of breath-taking in her yellow Giambattista Valli creation. It's clear that Jennifer was going for the sexy Hollywood screen siren look – and she certainly achieved what she set out to do. Chic and sophisticated with a vintage inspired edge, juxtaposed quite wonderfully with a thigh grazing slit. The seduction powers that Jennifer Lopez possesses never cease to amaze us. The hair complemented the outfit perfectly, as did the rest of the styling. We can't take our eyes off the sparkly accompaniments either – including not one but two bedazzling necklaces and a chunky bracelet. Our inner magpies can't help but squeal with delight!

Met Gala 2017 in Valentino

Valentino has dressed his fair share of style icons over the years for the annual Met Gala, but Jennifer Lopez walking the red carpet in his dreamy baby blue dress might just be one of his finest Met Gala moments of all time. And considering Jennifer Lopez is competing with the likes of Sarah Jessica Parker, Anne Hathaway, Lily Collins, Gwyneth Paltrow and Rachel McAdams (to name just a few) for the coveted top spot, it's a pretty bold statement. But how can anyone not fall in love with this Jennifer Lopez look? This might be the least amount of bronzed, glowing skin she has ever exposed, which just goes to show that she doesn't always need tricks like flashing the flesh to be glamorous and make heads turn with her beauty.

2017 Billboard Latin Music Awards in Julien Macdonald

This is Jennifer Lopez doing what Jennifer Lopez does best – and that’s blowing everyone else out of the water the second she steps onto the red carpet. J-Lo unapologetically owned it in this breath-taking Julien Macdonald dress at the latest Latin Music Awards, throwing together everything that we love about her – and so much more! The silky, voluminous hair, the outfit which had strategically placed cuts and slits to show off her enviable body, the attention grabbing sparkles – Jennifer threw everything at this Latin Music awards Look. And we are more than grateful for it. Up and coming music newbies have a lot to learn from Jennifer Lopez – she is a music and style icon for a reason!

2017 Grammy Awards in Ralph & Russo Couture Spring 2017

We know that Jennifer Lopez has mastered the sexy, ultra glamorous look, as well as the chic and sophisticated high fashion look- and we certainly aren’t surprised to find that she has conquered the “pretty pink” look too. She may have worn a beautiful blush pink dress to the 2017 Grammy Awards, but she did it in the classic Jennifer Lopez way meaning it was anything but cute and girly. Even with a giant bow on her shoulder! And we think that definitely had something to do with the low cut, peek a boo neckline, and of course that dangerously high slit that she is practically famous for. Add a slit to any outfit and you instantly have a Jennifer Lopez approved look. And when you have perfect pins like Jennifer Lopez does, you would be foolish not to show them off at any opportunity.

2017 People's Choice Awards in Reem Acra

Once again proving that you don't need to flash the flesh to make jaws drop, Jennifer Lopez attended the 2017 People's Choice Awards in a seriously stunning Reem Acra gown. She didn't need to have her skin exposed to show off her figure either, as the dress hugged every dream-like curve like it was designed especially for her. Talk about fitting like a glove! While her skin wasn't on display, the same can't be said for the sparkles. The intricate embellishment on the top half of Jennifer's dress certainly didn't go unnoticed – part of the reason we fell in love with this look as soon as we laid eyes on it. And the sparkle didn't end there. It kept on going in the form of sparkly earrings, an abundance of intricately shaped rings, and an almost blinding clutch bag. Jennifer Lopez doesn't do things by halves, in case you didn't already know! Having her hair pinned back in an elegant up-do was the perfect accompaniment for a look with such heavy embellishment, while the statement smoky eye made sure everyone knew that Jennifer Lopez means seductive business. Easily one of the best dressed A-listers on the red carpet at the People's Choice Awards.

2015 Vanity Fair Oscars After Party in Zuhair Murad Couture

This look is exactly what the Oscars red carpet is all about – and this was just the after party! Long gowns, voluminous silky manes, and more sparkle than you could ever dream of. Jennifer Lopez and a couture Zuhair Murad gown truly made magic! There have been a lot of “naked dresses” on the big red carpets over the past couple of years. Some people have got them wrong, we can't lie. Some people on the other hand have got them right. Really right, even. And then there's Jennifer Lopez, who essentially blew everyone else and their naked dress efforts out the water. Jennifer Lopez let her golden waves tumble down freely over the dress, which definitely complemented it and enhanced its appeal. Fairly subtle make up, complete with a matching nude lip and some drop earrings finished off her look in the best way possible. This might just be one of our favourite Jennifer Lopez red carpet looks of all time.

NBCUniversal Upfront at Radio City Music Hall in Elie Saab

Like a fine wine, Jennifer Lopez seems to have got better (as well as hotter, and more stylish than ever!) with age. We're going to begin with her hairdo. Buns are quite tricky to nail – ballerina buns have a risk of looking too formal, and there's a very fine line between what counts as a skilful messy bun or an actual just-rolled-out-of-bed-and-made-no-effort mess. It goes without saying, but Jennifer Lopez – she who doesn't even have “bad hair day” in her vocabulary – has rocked her bun with ease. How does she make it look so effortless?! The bun isn't even the most awe-inspiring part of this outfit, as the fact that she avoided a severe wardrobe malfunction and managed to preserve her modesty in a dress with such a dangerously positioned slit is nothing short of a miracle. A miracle for most, but just another day in the office/on the red carpet for the one and only J-Lo.

Hosting One Voice: Somos Live 2017 in Romona Keveza

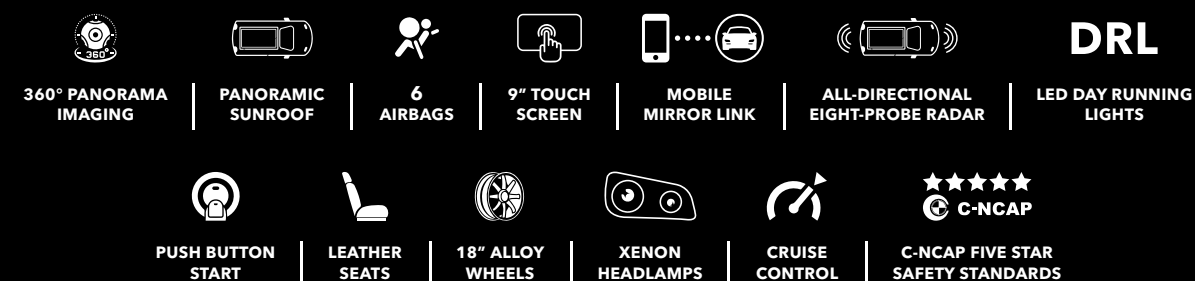

There was no way we were letting this outfit go unnoticed and unpraised. In October, Jennifer Lopez – along with Alex Rodriguez, and Marc Anthony – hosted ‘One Voice: Somos Live’, a live concert and telethon put on in order to raise money for the Puerto Rico disaster relief. As hostess, J-Lo certainly delivered by making sure all eyes were on her, courtesy of a beyond-stunning dress from the Romona Keveza Spring/Summer 2017 collection. The voluminous skirt, complete with the boldest floral explosion, was definitely the highlight of the event for us. Her sleek, golden, Rapunzel-esque locks with just the subtlest hint of a curl complemented the outfit wonderfully, without taking any attention away from the main attraction, which of course, was the Romona Keveza masterpiece. Flawless as usual, Jennifer!

COMPASSION for FASHION

Ethical Fashion and Beauty Brands

Ethical. Vegan. Halal approved. Cruelty free. Sustainable. Enviro-friendly. Compassion fashion. Whatever you want to call it, ethical fashion has many different names, but the same message of “buying with purpose” remains throughout.

And we’re going to take a look at some of the best ethical fashion and beauty brands that have gone one step further by ensuring not only high quality, in-demand products, but also ones that are responsibly sourced and can be enjoyed by everyone in the world without feeling an ounce of guilt.

Responsibly sourced fashion hasn’t always had a good reputation, with cynics under the impression that anything that isn’t so-called “fast fashion” isn’t worth browsing let alone buying. However, we are pretty confident that by the time ethical fashion sceptics have finished reading this feature, they will have done a complete 180 and transformed their beliefs almost instantly. When ethical fashion looks as good as it feels, what’s not to love about it?

Read on to see some of our favourite ethical fashion and beauty brands out there, and how many things on the ethical checklist they cover. From sustainably sourced to completely vegan and cruelty free, our list covers almost every range imaginable. Which ones are you going to add to your wardrobe and make-up bag?

Stella McCartney

Stella McCartney is probably one of the biggest ethical fashion brands out there, and the designer has always made a huge point of promoting the fact that her designs are completely cruelty free. As they always have been since the brand first started almost 17 years ago! The lifelong vegetarian designer has made sure her award-winning brand has sworn off all leather goods – a potentially risky decision, but that doesn’t seem to have put a dent in the success or beauty of her lust-worthy pieces. Just look at them! As well as being a go-to designer for the A-listers’ red carpet events, Stella McCartney is a hot favourite amongst ethical shoppers and bloggers, as well as completely vegan shoppers, bloggers and social media influencers. It isn’t at all surprising to see her brand soar to success with the world’s ever-growing vegan population backing it wholeheartedly. And speaking of success, Stella McCartney has just been named as the recipient of the ‘Special Recognition Award for Innovation’ at the prestigious Fashion Awards – the very first award of its kind. The fashion designer has been praised for her contribution to ethical and sustainable fashion – something she has pioneered from the very beginning. “She has created a modern business that, in turn, had led her to be at the forefront of sustainable sourcing and material innovation,” Natalie Massenet, the chairwoman of the British Fashion Council, told WWD. “She is proof that high and ethical fashion combined can create astonishing results and her innovative approach to the industry is an inspiration to us all.”

Levi's

You didn't expect to find Levi's on this list, did you? While Levi's don't admit to being able to tick every single one of the ethical fashion boxes, the brand certainly goes quite a few steps further than some of the industry's leading denim suppliers. (Not naming any names!) Over the years, the brand has upped its game in terms of production, so anyone concerned with the environment would be pleased to know that the new and improved production methods use far less water than the traditional techniques. Workers' rights are also pretty big at Levi's thanks to the brand's Well-Being initiative. So in other words, you can smile the next time you slip on a pair of your favourite Levi's jeans, as you'll know that you're doing your bit for the people who made them, as well as the environment.

H&M

Who hasn't swung by H&M and walked away with several bags full of goodies every time they pay a visit to the Dubai Mall? While H&M boasts some of the biggest new-season catwalk trends at extremely low and affordable prices, it also promises a whole lot more. The new H&M Conscious Collection does exactly what it says on the tin (or any other recyclable material you want to insert here) and provides us with sustainable fashion in a flash. A prime example of fast fashion moving forward with more eco-conscious offerings – 2018 is nearly here, after all! The H&M Conscious Collection is fairly new, having only launched fully earlier in the year, but it's clear from the interest it's already garnered that it's marking the start of a big change in the fashion industry. And we couldn't be more excited for what's to come!

Eylure

Do you have an ongoing battle with your conscience every time you go shopping for new eyelashes? We can't argue with the fact that false lashes have revolutionised the eye make-up game, making it almost impossible to go for a bold and dramatic eye without an instant faux lash enhancement. It's no secret that – despite how they are made – real mink lashes are getting more and more popular thanks to their feathery and fluttery aesthetic that synthetic fibres can't even come close to replicating. However, make up brands around the world have caught up with the need for ethical fashion, and as a result, have produced some pretty convincing eyelashes that are completely cruelty free. And eyelash giant Eylure is just one of them. We've tried and tested its range of Luxe Lashes which have been created to mimic real mink, and can confirm that they are just as good as the real thing – better, in fact, because we know that they're entirely cruelty free! Eylure also insist that they don't test any of their lashes on animals, so we'll be resting easy tonight and every other night we go in the cruelty free lash direction.

Kat Von D

As if we needed another reason to obsess over Kat Von D. Forget Kylie Jenner and her infamous line of liquid lipsticks, because Kat Von D has given us something far better as part of her newly launched vegan friendly range. Kat Von D's longwear matte liquid lipsticks are a game changer because they are 100% vegan, and also hydrate and moisturise the lips at the same time too. Two for the price of one!

And don't even get us started on the make-up brushes! Launched earlier this year with the "fur free artistry" motto, Kat Von D's cruelty free make up brushes should be in every single make-up bag, as their superior quality makes them rival even the top selling make-up brushes that don't have quite the same dedication to compassion and animal protection.

"I've teamed up with my #KvDArtistryCollective artists to create the most effective brush formations, using the highest grade synthetic fibres that mimic the same product distribution you would get from animal-based bristles," she wrote on her Instagram earlier this year, when the products were just about to launch. "We are living in amazing times right now where technology is making it so easy to make compassionate choices in the products we purchase, without having to exploit animals."

Well said! And she has certainly delivered, because the high grade synthetic fibres of her fur free brushes are truly superb quality, as clarified by top make-up artists and beauty aficionados around the world.

As well as liquid lipsticks and out-of-this-world brushes, the vegan range includes a dreamy crème contour palette, an illuminating glitter eyeshadow palette, an impressive selection of foundations (liquid and powder, thank you very much) as well as lip liners, eyeliners, and even perfume. And that's not even the whole collection! Check out the Kat Von D website and head straight to the Vegan range for the full awe-inspiring selection.

Bloggers and Insta-stars

love ethical fashion too...

We aren't the only ones who like raving about ethical fashion. Some of the biggest bloggers and social media influencers do their bit when it comes to promoting ethical fashion. The list of ethical bloggers and Instagram stars gets bigger and more powerful by the second, so here are just a few of our favourites right now...

STYLE DESTINO

Website: www.styledestino.com - Instagram: @Styledestino

Style Destino, or SJ as she's more commonly known, is one of our favourite vegan bloggers and Insta-stars of the moment – and not just because she's from Dubai, as her jealousy-inducing life takes her all around the globe. Her seemingly forever-growing Stella McCartney handbag collection is one any handbag aficionado will covet, and her style as a whole is proof that vegan style can be just as deluxe and luxurious as that of some of the biggest bloggers in the world. If her outfit posts are anything to go by, we would trade wardrobes with her in a heartbeat!

A CUP OF JOAN

Website: www.acupofjoan.com - Instagram: @ACupofJoan

This is the blog (and Instagram account) for you if you want to start your cruelty free journey but are slightly overwhelmed with the new lifestyle change. Joan eases her readers and followers in, and guides vegan newbies through rather effortlessly, but also keeps long-time vegans and cruelty free shoppers on side too. Her posts are informative, inspiring, but most of all, never boring. If you needed proof that ethical fashion is indeed in fashion, then this is the place to look. Bookmark this blog, because we predict you'll be spending a lot of time on it. Even if you don't want to go down the vegan route, she will give you the outfit and lifestyle inspiration you never even knew you needed.

THE LITTLE FOXES

Website: www.thelilfoxes.com - Instagram: @AshleePiper

What's not to love about this blog? Chicago based blogger Ashlee Piper writes about everything vegan with an unapologetically fierce yet fabulous attitude which could be enough to transform naysayers' opinions about the vegan lifestyle in an instant. Ashlee covers a range of topics on her blog, but her dedication to showcasing the most animal-friendly fashion and beauty products is what keeps us constantly logging on. She also does a lot of giveaways too, so be sure to keep checking in to see what she's got lined up.

DINATORKIA

Website: www.dinatorkia.co.uk - Instagram: @DinaTokio

Fashion meets faith in one truly fabulous blog. UK-based Egyptian Dina Torkia – or Dina Tokio, if you prefer – is a blogger, Instagram star and Youtube sensation who lives her life in a stylish way that doesn't compromise her Muslim faith. As well as displaying enviable outfits, you'll often find her blogging about all things Halal friendly, from sweets to nail polish to all-else in-between. If there's a Halal friendly beauty product about to launch, you can bet that Dina will be on top of it.

FASHIONVEGGIE

Website: <http://fashionveggie.com>

Instagram: @FashionVeggie

Seems pretty self-explanatory from the blog title, but it's always nice to know what you're getting from the get go, don't you agree? The blog was founded by Dallas resident Molly, and really makes the eco-friendly lifestyle look like a walk in the park. A super stylish one at that! The blog has something for everyone, with Molly photographing her outfits from low cost high street brands right the way through to the most luxurious high fashion brands out there.

Trend

by Jara Ghadri

The ultimate luxury of this look is a metaphor for the energy, boundless, wild and unexpected twist of effortless chic.

Hand-embellished with enchanting colors, paired with smart silk pants, plunging necklines exposing the bold, feminine accents that are closest to the skin.

Electric and elegant bodysuits, exotic flora and fauna motifs, printed smocks, vibrant botanicals, silky stripes, silk suiting and gentle pastels, this is what dreams are made of right now. Literally.

Whether best dressed front-row guests or glorious fashion icons, stars like Selena Gomez, Rihanna or Gigi Hadid can't get enough of this pyjama trend that is everywhere.

Mastering the Look for your next Party and rocking the look you have to make sure the outfit is a) completely wrinkle-free and b) experiment.

You don't necessarily have to wear a full pyjama set:

You also may want to try a pyjama shirt with a pair of jeans, team up with a leather skirt or a blazer tee and flowing pyjama pants."

Note: The contrast of slinky and tough works well.

My final tip for nailing the trend is: dressing it up is key!

The full pyjama look needs height to allow them to fall just so:

So it all comes down to the styling! Since you're already wearing a more casual ensemble, you just slip into some of your ankle-strap high-heels or sexy boots, add a colorful necklace or some diamond drop earrings that will elevate your entire outfit. Put on a freshtone lipstick and highlight your eyes to enchant and twist heads!

Uniquely innovative and exuding complex creativity, Stardance from Louis Moinet is the world's only timepiece that sparkles with the brilliance of diamonds from outer space! Stardance features a spectacular moon phase created from a finely-crafted fragment of the Enstatite EH3 meteorite. This rare piece of space rock boasts scintillating nano-diamonds believed to have been formed in cosmic collisions that occurred billions of years ago, pre-dating the formation of our solar system.

Surrounded by an aventurine night sky, the fragment of meteorite represents the moon, making this horological complication especially dazzling and also making Stardance the first watch in the world to contain interstellar diamonds.

Harry Allen appointed LONGINES Rising Star 2017

Montevideo (Uruguay) / Saint-Imier (Switzerland), 21 November 2017 – As FEI's Top Partner, the Swiss watchmaking brand Longines took part to the FEI Awards Ceremony and was proud to grant Irish 16-year-old jumping rider Harry Allen the 2017 Longines Rising Star Award as well as presenting the laureate with an elegant Longines timepiece. Despite his young age, Harry already has a long list of his own successes with a total of 20 international wins. In addition, the winged hourglass brand announced its involvement with FEI Solidarity – which aims to promote and develop equestrian sport – by supporting the “FEI Solidarity Retraining of Racehorses in partnership with Longines”.

On 21 November 2017, at the prestigious 2017 FEI Awards Ceremony held in Montevideo, Uruguay, Irish jumping rider Harry Allen was presented the Longines Rising Star by Juan-Carlos Capelli, Vice President of Longines and Head of International Marketing. The promising young athlete also received an elegant Conquest Classic chronograph fitted with a self-winding caliber.

Ireland's 16-year-old jumping rider Harry Allen is following in his older brother Bertram Allen's footsteps, making a name for himself on the international stage in show jumping. The 2017 Longines Rising Star laureate has had a hugely successful year, claiming double gold at the European Pony Championships in Kaposvár, Hungary. Despite his young age, Harry already has a long list of his own successes with a total of 20 international wins.

Longines is particularly pleased to participate in the FEI Awards Ceremony, which was set up in 2009 to acknowledge the contribution of personalities and organizations in their progress in equestrian sports – both indoor and outdoor. The Longines Rising Star rewards athletes between the ages of 14 and 21 who demonstrate outstanding sporting talent.

More generally, the winged hourglass brand attaches great importance to encouraging youngsters to practice sports. Therefore, Longines supports young athletes through programs linked with sports and the values that it upholds, including the Longines Rising Ski Stars prize offered to the best woman athlete under the age of 21 and male athlete under 23 taking part in the FIS Alpine Ski World Cup, the Longines Future Ski Champions competition for athletes under 16, the Longines Future Tennis Aces tournament organized for children under 13, running in parallel to the Roland-Garros tournament, and the Longines Future Racing Stars open to young jockeys at the Prix de Diane Longines.
